

Dear all,

first of all, I want to apologize for the long silence at altrupedia.

Last year during fall I had to master a personal crisis for which I needed all my resources. Adhering to altrupedia's core principles, I decided I needed to pause ongoing operations and further development of altrupedia and concentrate all resources on me and my phd thesis project.

The plan worked out, I mastered the crisis and am back well on track for my thesis defense in June.

It will still take some time before we have the resources to work on Altrupedia (and Altruedu), but preparations and foundational work are ongoing on a small scale in the background.

We have already come up with a new related project: Altruland.

Altruland will be a space for children and adults where education, science, and arts meet the outdoors and adventure. It is inspired by the wonderful Abenteuerspielplatz Vaihingen (<https://www.abi-vaihingen.de>).

There, at the age of seven, I hammered my first nails into wood while building my first treehouse with friends.

Yours, Stephan
